The documentary film: "Victor Schauberger - Understanding Nature and Copying It" from the year 2008 by Schauberger Verlag, is the first film about Viktor Schauberger's life's work. The Upper Austrian forester Viktor Schauberger (1885 - 1958) is regarded today as a pioneer of modern water research and holistic nature observation. For 50 years his knowledge was kept under wraps because he was ahead of his time. There are Austrians who do not know him, although Schauberger was an extraordinary genius with numerous patents. His inventions include apparatus for drinking water refinement, spiral pipes for friction-reducing water conduction, nature-appropriate river regulations as well as energy generation from water and air according to the suction principle and through vortex creation. The truu Manufactory in Pforzheim applies insights and principles from Victor Schauberger specifically in the energization of his drinking water refinement. https://t.me/truuinfochannel
